

Charlotte: my story

Eight-year-old Charlotte Cleverley-Bisman has never known a life with limbs.

At six months of age Charlotte contracted Meningococcal Septicaemia and doctors were forced to amputate part of her arms and legs. Charlotte: My Story starts when Charlotte is six and follows her journey to walk in her prosthetics. She is finding walking difficult and often painful, increasingly opting to use her power chair.

Over a two-year period we follow Charlotte and her parents who travel to the USA on a quest for new prosthetics, face impending surgery and intensive rehab, delight in Charlotte's sporting successes and help her deal with being different. 'Team Charlotte' are finally positive that Charlotte's future is up on her legs.

Charlotte: My Story is a compelling, heartfelt documentary showing how the courage, determination and spirit of an eight-year-old girl can overcome seemingly insurmountable challenges life has thrown her way. Two documentaries Baby Charlotte and Charlotte: A Life Without Limbs tracks Charlotte's story and progress from birth.
