BEACON 23

As humanity ventured into the farthest reaches of the Milky Way, they built beacons - essentially lighthouses in space - to guide their way. The beacons might be in the middle of no where, but they are on the highway to everything. Without them, travel across the unfathomable distances of deep space would be impossible.

Beacon 23 follows Aster (Lena Headey) a government space agent and Halan (Stephan James) a stoic ex military man, whose fates become entangled after they find themselves trapped together at the end of the known universe. Headey's Aster mysteriously finds her way to a lonely Beacon keeper, on his lighthouse in the darkest recesses of space. A tense battle of wills unfolds as Halan, the keeper, begins to question whether Aster is friend or foe as her ability to disguise her agenda and motives could make her a formidable opponent.

THE GREEN VEIL

It's 1955 and Gordon Rogers hates himself. He's Latinx trying to pass as white. It's no secret, everyone around him knows it, yet still he tries his hardest to fit in. He's married the perfect red haired woman, adopted a beautiful white daughter, and found himself heading up the most patriotic endeavor the FBI has ever embarked on - Native Assimilation.

On paper - he's a true "American." But why does he still... hate himself?

The Green Veil is an anthology series on oppression in America. The first season finds us on the backside of WW2 where we intertwine the story of a self-loathing Latinx FBI agent, a female fighter pilot turned housewife and a Native American family clinging for survival in a world that's hell bent on suffocating them all.

ONCE UPON A DEBUTANTE

Le Bal Paris is the world's most high profile debutante ball and this documentary film marks the first time cameras will be granted access to the annual invitation-only event which brings together international high-profile Gen Z guests in the name of fashion and charity. Since the 18th century, debutante balls have long been a part of tradition and history but in this documentary, viewers will get to see an unfiltered, intimate look at how, why and whether this event has evolved for the modern world.

We will see behind the scenes process of this exclusive international event, and all that goes into its production including how Ophélie Renouard, founder of le Bal Paris, and her team manage the intricacies behind invites, pairing guests with haute couture designers, matching the invitees to their Cavaliers and more.

THE SECRETS OF FRIENDSHIP

Step into the world of the “friendship detectives”, scientists who investigate the social lives of humans and other animals. They’re on the hunt for hidden clues and patterns that will reveal The Secrets of Friendship. Travel to Shark Bay, Australia to see male dolphins dance the tango and communicate with friends. In Puerto Rico, learn the secret code for a “friend request” from rhesus macaques. Visit the Cambridge BabyLab and the ToddlerLab in London – where researchers study small tykes with high tech. Meet scientists who investigate if brain scans can predict who will become friends. And learn what helps bring men closer together. The Secrets of Friendship brings plenty of new evidence to light, as scientists grapple with, and test, compelling questions like: What makes dogs our friends? Do dolphin and human friendship behaviours have anything in common? And why do we have friends in the first place? (Spoiler Alert: They are very good for us!)

FERMONT

This documentary series follows the daily lives of tough jobs workers at the mega Mont-Wright mining complex, one of the largest iron ore mine in America. It's a world of disproportionate trucks and giant infrastructures, where the stakes are high, the work titanic, arduous and fascinating to observe.

Located in Northern Quebec, Fermont is a company town protected by THE WALL, a structure designed to be a windscreen protecting it from the harsh elements and inspired by that of Svappavaara, an iron mining town in Sweden. Fermont is more than just a "job" - it's a lifestyle choice, an experience that offers a unique, intriguing, and fascinating way of life.

SECRETS IN THE JUNGLE

The jungles and forests of Earth have terrified the human race for years. There's just something unsettling about not knowing what could be lurking behind the next tree. That hasn't stopped us from exploring them and searching for the lost cities and treasures rumored to be inside.

In recent years, the world has become a much smaller place with everything mapped out and no location hidden from satellites. However, the jungles still hold their secrets, with large amounts of land still unexplored, tribes unmet, creatures undocumented, and hidden ancient ruins beneath their thick canopies. From secret structures in Guatemala, mystery fossils in Madagascar or Mexico's Skull Cave – Secrets In The Jungle unveils never before seen secrets.
